We welcome any and all proposals that are related to Indigenous Food Sovereignty. We recognize that submitting an abstract might be intimidating to those who may not have written one before and want to reassure presenters/attendees that we care more about a proposal's content, community building potential, and authenticity more than how polished it is. We want to hear from YOU and how YOU and/or YOUR COMMUNITY is advancing Indigenous Food Sovereignty. This is an example of a proposal that can be submitted for an indoor workshop/presentation at the conference site. You do not need to have a hands on activity in addition to a presentation.

Soil is the foundation of our farming systems, yet we often walk all over it and do not think much about it. Like other natural materials, soil can be used as paint to make beautiful artwork. Explore the diversity of soil types, colors, and textures through this hands-on activity. You will get your hands dirty and paint with soils collected around Michigan! Take home a mini canvas and learn more about the world beneath us and creative ways to use soils in education programs.
